Bertolucci - romance for the girls, sport for the boys

› Sophie Furley

Bertolucci has released two new attractive collections for 2010. The first is the Serena Garbo Valentina, which came out in the stores in time for Valentine's day, and the second is the Forza Collection, a resolutely modern and sporty masculine line.

The Valentina model is equipped with a Swiss quartz movement and is adorned with a brand new dial that includes a loose heart set with 14 pink sapphires (0.07 carats) and applied indexes. The base of the dial is made of curved white-silvered opaline and has an off-centred curved sunray pattern and central oval minute track with 'BERTOLUCCI' printed in black at 12 o'clock. The stainless steel case is set with full cut VVS / FGH diamonds (0.61 carats) and a curved sapphire crystal with anti-reflective treatment. Other special features include an elegant 'B' logo at 12 o'clock and a shocking pink alligator and calf leather strap with pink stitching.

For the gents, Bertolucci has created a masculine black collection for the lovers of watch mechanics and strong design. Like with all Bertolucci's timepieces, the case is inspired by the shape of a pebble, which makes the timepiece extremely comfortable to wear. The all black PVD case holds one of three automatic movements: a chronograph with tachymeter scale, three-hand calibre with big date and power reserve indication or a three-hand movement with day and date counters and power reserve indication. Dials are available in jet-black opaline, to match the case, or a contrasting white silvered opaline, both with touches of red to accentuate the sporty look. Both collections present great new designs for the brand's retailers and fans. <
